

GIRLS WIN—BUT THE BOYS LOSE

Rhineland High School Teams
Play At Antigo Saturday Night

The girls' and boys' basketball teams of the Rhineland High school met the teams of the Antigo High school in that city Saturday evening. The following scores tell the story of the contests:

Rhineland girls, 11
Antigo girls, 2
Rhineland boys, 6
Antigo boys, 61

The game between the two girls' teams was well played and ability was shown on both sides. The Antigo girls made the first basket and for five or six minutes of play the score remained 2 to 0 in their favor. Rhineland then started making baskets and from that time on had everything their own way.

The boys' game was too one sided to be interesting. The Antigo team was too heavy for the local quintette and this handicap combined with the slippery condition of the floor rendered it impossible for Rhineland to make any progress.

The members of the Antigo teams and the teachers and students of the High school treated the visitors with great courtesy, making the stay in the railroad city a pleasant one.

The local teams and rooters returned on Northwestern train 105 due to arrive in this city at 11:56 p. m. but owing to the storm it was about 2:30 o'clock Sunday morning before the young folks reached home.

ACCEPTS NEW POSITION

S. T. Walker Resigns Place With the State Railroad Commission

S. T. Walker has resigned his position with the Wisconsin Railroad Commission to become associated with the Stoddard-Toffey company. Mr. Walker will have charge of the bond and mortgage department.

The Stoddard-Toffey company deal in bonds, mortgages and lands and has a capital of $1,000,000. Offices are at Madison and St. Paul. Many of the leading men of Madison and other cities in that part of the state are stockholders.

During the time Mr. Walker has been with the railroad commission he has been of valuable assistance to that body. His Rhineland friends wish him success in his new position.

HIGH SCHOOL HAPPENINGS

Important Doings Of The Week Among The Students

Dr. Sabin of the Milwaukee Downer College, who spoke at the Congregational church last Sunday, gave us a very interesting talk on "Wasted Efforts" in high school Monday.

Mr. Petrie of the prison reform work, took a few minutes Wednesday noon to say something about his work and its relation to the young folks of today. He told us some surprising things about the prison work and juvenile courts.

Anybody who may have cast long glances at that pedestal in Miss Oakley's room and thought what a fine plant stand it would make, or who has desired to possess it for any other laudable reason, must know that he can never more have a chance to get it for his own, as it is now being used to support a large bust of William Shakespeare.

The statue has been missing for some time, and like some of the members of the school, it has been here so long now, that the school can hardly be run without it. Bud Lewis, Leo Hildebrand, and Paul Joslin succeeded in getting it back into the school.

BOOST FOR EASTER BALL

Money Will Be Used For The Armory's
New Floor

In soliciting patronage for the grand Easter military ball at the Armory Monday night, March 24, the members of Company I wish to remind the public that since the Armory was built it has been given gratis on many occasions for political gatherings, citizens' meetings, conventions and even social affairs. The citizens will now have an opportunity to show their appreciation of the company's past liberality by buying tickets for the ball and thus help to defray the expense of the new floor being laid at the Armory. This floor when finished will be one of the best for dancing purposes in northern Wisconsin. It will be richly polished and smooth as glass. It will be used for the first time at the Easter ball.

It is planned to make this ball one of the most brilliant functions ever held at the Armory. The various committees in charge will soon be hard at work completing arrangements for the big affair.

PERKINS LOSES IN CAPONI BOUT

Well Known Italian Boxer Proves Too Much For The Local Boy

Houghton, Mich., Feb. 24.—Tony Caponi showed it his bout with Billy Perkins of Rhineland, Wis., Saturday night that he is far from being a has been. He displayed a complete reversal of form and his aggressive attack, supplemented with great footwork made it possible for him to win a one-sided victory.

Caponi floored Perkins four times Billy being flattened in the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh rounds. The knockdown in the latter chapter ended the set, as the referee then held up the Italian's hand to save his opponent from further punishment. A lightning right whiplashed Perkins' jaw was the wallop that put Billy to sleep.

The first news in this city of the Caponi-Perkins bout was received in a long distance telephone message from Hancock, Sunday morning. There was much regret among the admirers of Billy here to learn of his defeat.

It is stated that had Perkins not hurt his hand early in the bout he would have put up a better showing against the Italian boy.

CIRCUIT COURT BEGINS MONDAY

Calendar This Term Is Not Long And Short Session
Is Expected

The March term of circuit court for Oneida county convenes in this city next Monday afternoon. Judge A. H. Reed will preside.

The hearing of applicants for citizenship papers has been adjourned until April 4th, owing to the fact that the original time set, April 3, comes within thirty days of election, making it illegal to hear applications.

The calendar of circuit court this term is not long and court will probably not last more than ten days or two weeks. There are nine criminal cases, ten issues of fact for jury and 13 issues of fact for court.

Judge B. D. Park of Stevens Point is expected in the city Monday to sit at the second trial of John Sohler charged with indecent liberties.

L. Rockstein was here from Merrill Wednesday looking after business matters.

ELKS MINSTRELS AFTER EASTER

Coming Show Of Rhineland
Lodge 598 Promises To Eclipse Them All

The minstrel show to be given by Rhineland lodge 598, B. P. O. Elks in this city shortly after Easter promises to outshine anything in the line of home talent productions ever given in this city. It will eclipse the entertainment given by the lodge here last spring and that is saying considerable—for all who attended that show pronounced it the best ever.

The opening first part of the coming show will equal in elaborateness and detail that staged by many of the traveling minstrel organizations. The costumes will be attractive and all of the big song hits and brand new jokes will be introduced. There will be a score of local puns which will keep the audience in a continual uproar.

The Elks intend to advertise the entertainment thoroughly not only in this city but in all of the neighboring towns with the expectation of drawing a large crowd of outsiders. A fine street parade will probably be given on the day of the show.

There is talk among the Elks that the minstrel may be put on at Antigo following its appearance in Rhineland.

BAD STORM RAGES IN RHINELANDER

Saturday's Blizzard Is General
Over State—Causes Big Damage

One of the worst storms in many years and the first big storm experienced by the residents of Rhineland in this winter swept over the state last Friday night and Saturday morning.

The blizzard wrecked telephone and telegraph wires, crippled train service on all the railroads and caused a suspension of business for several hours in many parts of the country. The blizzard was general throughout the state.

Millions of mountains of snow filled the deep railroad cuts making it impossible for trains to push their way through with any degree of speed. Freight traffic was entirely blocked throughout Saturday and passenger trains were all the way from three to six hours late. It required two and three huge locomotives to pull the passenger trains. The engines and coaches were literally covered with snow and ice, presenting a winter scene such as one rarely has the opportunity of witnessing.

Snow plows were sent out over the tracks as soon as possible but it was not until Sunday morning that traffic again resumed its normal condition.

More snow fell during the storm than at any other time this winter.

From different cities in the state came reports of heavy losses due to the blizzard. The most havoc was done in the southern section of Wisconsin where the storm gripped the country for thirty hours. In Chicago the damage is estimated at one million dollars. Milwaukee was also hard hit.

FOR PRISON REFORM

Rev. A. C. Petrie of Milwaukee is in the city in the interests of the Society for the Friendless. The organization deals with prevention of crime, prison reform and assistance for ex-convicts and paroled prisoners. The society operates in twelve states and is accomplishing vast good along its lines.

Rev. Petrie is meeting with no little encouragement in his work in Rhineland and has received numerous contributions for the cause.

A 375 YEAR JOB

That Is What Forester Griffith's
Scheme Means

Editor New North:

The recent opinion of the attorney general having given the forestry service something of a setback it might be well to suggest to the legislature that there is no need of any haste in fixing the matter again in working order.

We are in no hurry about it. The state forester very modestly asks for only 1,500,000 acres for a forest reserve and if one-half of this has been naturally reforested there remains only 750,000 acres to be planted.

The forester tells us that the annual production of the nurseries will soon be sufficient to plant nearly 2000 acres a year. By a simple arithmetical calculation we find the job can be finished in 375 years.

By that time our forester will be ready to retire to private life and spend the remainder of his days in the quiet contemplation of his work well done.

We fancy now we can hear him relating to his grandchildren of the fourteenth generation, his trials and triumphs in establishing a magnificent play ground against the strenuous opposition of a stubborn and stiff-necked generation.

ABLE ADDRESS BY MISS ELLEN SABIN

President Of Downer College
Speaks On "Rising Generation" Sunday

President Ellen C. Sabin of Milwaukee-Downer college gave the address at the Congregational vesper service last Sunday. Her audience completely taxed the capacity of the church auditorium. The speaker treated her subject, "The Rising Generation," in a scholarly dignified, and able manner. Her address carried with it a tone of whole some optimism; her outlook on conditions was rather hopeful, but she also pointed out some dangerous tendencies which should be eliminated. She urged the development of sturdy self-reliance, and wholesome respect in the rising generation. There was a ruggedness of moral quality in the address from beginning to end that was refreshing and reassuring. The large audience went to their homes after the service in a thoughtful, earnest mood.

DOCTORS ARE JUBILANT

It is now the doctors' time to crow. At the Lawrence allers Tuesday night they slipped one over on the Barbers by defeating them 110 points. The score was 2271 to 2161. Each team has now won two games and a contest will soon be bowled to decide the championship. The prospects are that this match will be a hard one owing to the bitter rivalry between the two teams.

"Twas the Doctors," Caspar cried, "Who put Hartley's boys to route; And why they rolled up such a score, I could not well make out. But things, you know, like that must be At every famous victory."

HAS GREEN DEER HIDE

S. Wasserman, a junk dealer of this city, was fined $25 and costs today for having a green deer hide in his possession. He was arraigned before Judge Walker and pleaded guilty. Henry Oberholzer, deputy game warden who caused Wasserman's arrest, confiscated furs valued at $50.

ATTORNEY LAFLIN HERE

Herbert N. Laflin will speak at St. Augustine's church at 7:30 o'clock Sunday evening.

Mr. Laflin is a Milwaukee attorney, a member of the standing committee of the diocese of Milwaukee and a prominent member of the Episcopal church there.

FARMERS' COURSE HERE IN MARCH

Will Be Held In City Hall—
Arrange Excellent Program

The program of the farmers' course is completed. The course will be held in the City Hall, Rhineland, March 13, 14 and 15. The thirteenth will be devoted to soils and dairy cattle. Mr. Ullsperger of the Soils Department of the College of Agriculture will talk upon "Soils of Oneida County and How to Handle Them" and "Crops and Fertilizers for Sandy Soils." Prof. Humphrey of the Animal Husbandry Department will talk upon "The Care of the Dairy Cow" and "Feeds for the Dairy Cow." The fourteenth will be the potato day. Prof. Millard, well known to Rhineland and Oneida people as the man in charge of the potato special last fall, will talk upon "The Potato Crop and How to Grow It" and "The Demands of the Potato Market." Agricultural Representative Luther will assist and talk upon trial plot work in the county. The fifteenth will be the grain and education day. Prof. R. A. Moore will talk upon "Alfalfa for Oneida County" and "Corn for Seed and Silage." Prof. Hatch will talk upon "The Development of Oneida County" and "Oneida County's Best Crop."

On Saturday, March 16, at the farmers' course an endeavor will be made to organize a county branch of the Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment Association. This association was founded by Prof. R. A. Moore and has been Prof. Moore's great organization for getting pure Wisconsin pedigreed seeds grown by farmers. This organization is responsible for very much of the prosperity of the farmers of Wisconsin. This organization has helped to grow pure bred grains and sell them to the rest of the world. Through this organization Wisconsin has been able to send seeds to South Africa and to China and all around the world. This organization has supplied dealers with as much as 60,000 bushels of grain at a time. Seed grain always commands a high price. The members of this organization can secure pure bred seeds from the College of Agriculture. Those who elect to join the association at the farmers' course will form a county branch of the order. It would seem that a good strong branch of this organization ought to be formed. Any one is eligible to membership.

The professors from the college on this course are men of state wide and national reputation. The meetings are free to all. There will be something of interest and worth to everybody who will attend. Last year the audiences were large but there was room for more people. This year the council room should be filled to its capacity. Already some in distant parts of the county are planning to attend. It will be a fine place at which to become acquainted. We ought to organize it by time, to promote pure bred dairy stock, to get clover hullers into the county, to buy rock phosphate, and to build sties. Let's have a great gathering of farmers, become acquainted and pull together for better and more profitable farming in Oneida county. Remember the dates Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 13, 14 and 15, 1913.

What it means to grow pure bred seeds is well illustrated by the success which Charles Sanders of Tomahawk Lake had with corn the past season. Mr. Sanders secured ten ears of Wisconsin No. 8 dent corn from the agricultural representative last fall he husked over sixty bushels of ears, about half of which was hard corn. The season was one of the worst that could be imagined for corn. Not long ago Mr. Sanders sent a barrel and a box of seed corn to the agricultural representative to sell. Mr. Sanders was doubtful about anybody's wanting anything that is grown in Oneida county. But if Mr. Sanders had ten times as much seed corn and then if a hundred farmers in this county had as much more

FLANSBURG CAN NOT BE FOUND

Former Hotel Man Charged
With Burglarizing Cars
Disappears

Monday a warrant was issued for the arrest of E. W. Flansburg, former proprietor of the Soo House on Bay Street, charging him with burglarizing cars on the Soo line. When the officers went to serve the warrant on Mr. Flansburg they were unable to locate him and it was later learned that he had disappeared from the city. Nothing regarding him or his whereabouts has since been ascertained. Sheriff Asmundsen has sent descriptions of the man throughout the northwest. Soo line detectives are also searching for him and it is believed that he will be apprehended soon.

The crime charged against Mr. Flansburg is alleged to have been committed about January 1, 1913, when a shipment of meats was removed from a Soo line car. Detectives got busy on the case and after an investigation sufficient evidence was secured to cause a warrant to be issued for Mr. Flansburg.

FORMER PASTOR TO TALK

FEW CONTAGIOUS DISEASES

Thus far this winter Rhinelander has had few, if any, cases of contagious diseases such as diphtheria, scarlet fever and smallpox. In this respect the citizens can consider themselves fortunate as several of the neighboring cities have been experiencing epidemics of these diseases.

Rhinelander has been a healthy city this winter and it is hoped that the spring will bring no change in the present conditions.

RELATIVES NOT FOUND

As yet nothing has been learned regarding the relatives of Charles Wallaski, the woodsman who was killed by a Northwestern train a week ago last Tuesday. One man who worked with Wallaski off and on for the last nine years said that he never heard him say anything about his people.

A photograph was taken of the body before burial for future identification.

HOPE FOR SETTLERS

The following letter from C. P. Crosby appeared in a recent issue of the Chicago Record-Herald:

Rhinelander, Wis., Feb. 8.—To the Editor: I note a letter in your issue of Feb. 6 from James A. Wilson regarding the question of land.

Now, there is no trouble for Mr. Wilson to get a piece of land or time in Oneda or any other northern Wisconsin county, and he need not pay a dollar cash in advance. If he has the ability and the means to go on the land, build and improve and make his living. In a few years he will be able to pay for the land all right. Most settlers in northern Wisconsin got their start in some such way, perhaps paying a few dollars down on the raw land and struggling along until they were in good condition.

Any man with means enough to get here and ability to clear and put up buildings and make a living for himself and family can get all the time he needs on the land. The trouble generally is that none has the means to get here and make a start. Cooped up in the city, on low wages, all of which is needed to the last penny, to pay actual living expenses, and generally in debt to the grocer and baker, it is very hard for them to save enough to even pay their expenses out into the country. But once they do get out and get nicely located, they find that it does not require nearly as much money to live as it does in the city. There is no rent, no fuel, no water tax, they raise most of their own food and money is needed principally for clothes and to pay small necessary matters like taxes. And there is something to look forward to; they can expect to own a home of their own some day.

The man who has the courage to start out has something to look forward to, while in the city it may be said to be all past or present.

C. P. CROSBY.

FOR MUNICIPAL COURT

A bill has been introduced in the legislature by Senator Stevens of Rhinelander, providing for the creating of a municipal court for Forest county, which it is considered would be of great benefit in convenience and economy in legal procedure for the people of the county. Unfortunately we are unable to print the bill as introduced by Mr. Stevens at the present time, but will do so soon.—Crandon Republican.

Will reveal its superior quality and convince you of the wide difference that really exists in lumber. There's as much difference between two boards that pass for the same grade as there is between a plug and a thoroughbred.

We invite a critical examination of our stock, simply because we know it to be much better than the average. QUALITY: That's our hobby. Wisconsin is a state of wonderful possibilities. We should recognize this fact—that no portion of the state has a monopoly upon all the good things. From the Illinois line to Lake Superior is an unsurpassed region—every part of it. There is room for more than 100,000 more farmers in the state.

Saturday was Washington's birthday but the day was not observed to any extent in this city. Business was not suspended, although it was a legal holiday. The postoffice was closed during the day, with the exception of an hour in the afternoon and there was no delivery of mail by carriers.

Citizens of Minocqua are discussing the matter of building a new public hall where dances and other functions can be held. Since the fire of last May the town has had no building in which entertainments could be held. It has been suggested to organize a stock company for the purpose of carrying out the undertaking.

The assessments of ten upper Wisconsin counties increased 240.8 percent from 1902 to 1912. This is a point in favor of a better fund for the state board of immigration. We can double the assessment rolls of the state in a short time if we are active, otherwise our capital will go for the enrichment of other states.

John Englebloom of Bayfield county was in the city Saturday. Mr. Englebloom owns a large farm near Washburn and is considering investing in this county. He thinks that the forest reserve system as planned by Mr. Griffith is an outrage, and a rank injustice to the taxpayers. Such a plan cannot help but stunt the growth of northern Wisconsin according to Mr. Englebloom.

If the Wisconsin Advancement association had done nothing else in the last year than to get the editors of farm papers to see Wisconsin in the right light, its efforts would have paid dividends. As a sample of what has been accomplished Orange Jud Farmer recently had four Wisconsin articles in a single issue, and scarcely misses an issue without something good to say of the state and its undeveloped lands.

That Wisconsin should come to the front and capture the world's championship award on alfalfa at the moment of agreeable proportion. That it should be captured by one of the upper counties will be surprising to those who are not familiar with the fact that that portion of the state is peculiarly suited to the production of the "king of forage crops" that is destined to have a wonderful effect upon the value of Wisconsin's agricultural output.

SYMPTOMS OF CONSUMPTION

Yield to Vinol.

The medical profession do not believe that consumption is inherited, but a person may inherit a weakness, or tendency to that disease.

A prominent citizen of Evansville, Ind., writes: "I was ill for five months with pulmonary trouble, and had the best of doctors; I had hemorrhages and was in a very bad way. Through the advice of a friend I tried Vinol, and I feel that it saved my life. It is all you recommend it to be. I believe it is the greatest medicine on earth. I have advised others to try Vinol, and they have had the same results." (Name furnished on request.)

Vinol soothes and heals the inflamed surfaces and allays the cough. Vinol creates an appetite, strengthens the digestive organs and gives the patient strength to throw off incipient pulmonary diseases.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you.

If you wish to know what the officials of the city of Rhinelander are doing, you must take the New North. It is the official city paper. It is also the only official county paper for Oneida county. Know what is going on in your city and county.

It is useless for candidates to ask credit at this office. Pay when you order the work done. You will be better satisfied and so will we. Political debts are not easily collected.

This office has conclusive evidence that the bulk of the milk and butter sold in this city needs rigid inspection.

It is given out that President-Elect Wilson will call a special session of congress for April 1st. Mr. Wilson has resigned as Governor of New Jersey to take effect Saturday at noon.

We fail to see how Chief Forester Griffith can do any real forestry work and still spend so much time as associate editor of many papers in the state. Griffith is a great president.

It is now reported on excellent authority that Emilio Madero, a third brother of the Maderos, was killed Tuesday while he was seeking to join others leagued against the provisional government of the assassin and traitor Huerta.

Oneida county is bonded about one hundred thousand dollars for a new court house. If the Forestry Department of the state takes away about one half the land as they are now contemplating, it means every taxpayer of the county will have to pay double the taxes on this debt.

The Anderson anti-fraternity bill has been the center of interest at the assembly committee meeting this week. The fraternity people in the university and out are bitterly opposed to this measure. Anderson is holding his own.

There is a similar bill before the Ohio legislature now.

Attorney General Owens hands down a decision that the amendment to the constitution giving permission to assess the people of the state to purchase large forestry tracts has not been properly passed and forbids the state treasurer and secretary to pay further orders until the supreme court passes on this. It is good news to northern Wisconsin. It is good news. Anything is good news that stops the Griffith rages.

NO DRINKS OR CIGARS
It would be well for candidates for county and municipal offices this spring to read the corrupt practices act of Wisconsin, which is like that of Minnesota, and hold themselves within its restrictions. The Wisconsin law also prohibits in general terms the giving away of cigars or drinks or anything of value as an inducement to vote for a candidate; prohibits spending money for hired solicitors and poll workers, and also prohibits candidates from hiring teams for use at the polls. The law states just what money can be spent for, and if any candidate violates its provisions he is rendered ineligible to hold the office for which he has been elected.—Wausau Pilot.

FOREST RESERVES
State Forester Griffith advocates that 1,000,000 acres should be added to the forest reserves in northern Wisconsin. At the present time there are 400,000 acres set aside for that. Why not agitate it for some of the southern counties and give Northern Wisconsin the place in the agricultural world that it deserves. If all these acres are to be under control who is going to pay the taxes that become exempt under that rule. Was, Oneida, Forest, Iron and Price counties are the localities spotted by the forester to plant pine trees on that will not be fit for market for 125 years. In the mean time who should pay the taxes, the state or the county in which they are located. This is a big problem and should be given consideration, as most of the counties mentioned are slated to death now.—Merrill News.

CONTEST WILL BE BITTER

The spring election will produce one of the hottest contests for control of the office of state superintendent of public instruction Wisconsin has ever known. The candidates are the present incumbent C. P. Cary and William Kittle who for a number of years has been secretary of the state board of normal regents. Cary announced his candidacy last week and Kittle has been in the field for some time. In the election is to be found an intensely bitter line up of a factional character. Cary is opposed by forces who do not approve of his university attitude and in addition, he is being actively opposed by what appears to be an organized campaign among some of the LaFollette leaders of the state.

The school men of the state are being thoroughly canvassed and every effort put forth to advance the candidacies of the two men. While party politics plays no part, as both candidates are Republicans, the campaign is not satisfactory to some of the LaFollette forces. He has either done something or failed to do something that meets with their accord and so he is scheduled for defeat. After the candidacy of a number of men had been considered, the opposition to Cary settled upon Kittle as the man most available to try conclusions with the present incumbent.

University Fight at Bottom
Involved in the campaign is the long continuing fight between the common school and university interests. For many years Cary has been a thorn in the flesh of the university authorities. He is ex-officio member of the regents and at times has failed to assume that attitude of complacent indifference which according to certain notions is a prerequisite of regency qualification. He has said things and written things about the university management which have commanded attention, and this, in part, may account for why he is to be disposed of unless the voters in the April election feel differently disposed.

In the meantime the old game of dust throwing is being indulged in to show that Cary had been sadly neglectful of the common school interests. He is being criticised for a failure to properly supervise the lower branches of the schools and for other reasons. An educational campaign is being conducted through the magazines of the LaFollette organization showing what Cary had failed to do. Among the members of the legislature an active canvass is being made and the campaign is waxing warm.—Evening Wisconsin.

HUERTA, THE TRAITOR
Think of it! General Huerta, the close friend and confidential advisor of the late Madero of Mexico, betrayed his chief in the battle of the city of Mexico and then it is believed entered into a plot by which Madero and vice-president Suarez were murdered by their guards on their way to the penitentiary. Benedict Arnold died a death of agony in remorse, so will Huerta if he is a man and has a heart, that is, if he does not get killed. The world has no respect for a betrayer and a traitor.

It is believed that the vast fortune of the Madero family estimated at $100,000,000 in gold, will now be devoted to supporting a bloody warfare that will not cease until the last member of the Diaz-Huerta administration has paid the death penalty.

FOREST COUNTY TOO
A few weeks ago when Oneida county asked the Forest County Board to join with them against the Griffith encroachment on our lands they are as ready as we to fight the Griffith Forestry Policy that the Chief Forester has announced that he wishes the following acreage for his state playgrounds.

Acres.
Vilas County 506,000
Oneida County 345,000
Forest County 253,000
Iron County 115,000
Price County 70,000

Total 1,259,000

ADD 16th AMENDMENT
The income tax amendment to the constitution of the United States was put into effect at noon on Tuesday in a formal proclamation by Secretary of State Philander C. Knox.

The amendment, the first since that enacted forty-five years ago abolishing slavery, is the sixteenth added to the original constitution.

The proclamation followed the ratification of the income tax resolution by three-fourths of the states in the union after its passage by congress.

Under the law it is necessary for the secretary of state officially to proclaim to the president and to the country the adoption of any constitutional amendment before it becomes valid.

SHOULD FIRST INVESTIGATE

On Monday the Milwaukee Free Press worked itself up into a great state of mind over State Forestry. It was surprised that neither the recent conventions of the retail lumber dealers or of the furniture dealers protested against the bills now in the legislature which if passed will check the State Forester. But the New North is not surprised at the oversight of the retail lumber dealers nor of the furniture dealers. These people know that State Forestry as now being worked out is a failure and a farce. Not a man of the present membership of either of the above named organizations would ever see a tree produced by the present Forestry Service big enough to be used for lumber or furniture.

The Free Press goes on to say that the forestry service aims to maintain Wisconsin as a lumber state. What a joke. If State Forestry had the whole state and all of the people in it working overtime still Wisconsin could not be kept on the map as a lumber state.

It further says that the charge that land suited for agricultural development has been withdrawn from public use is all "bosh". We guess that the editor of the Free Press has never ridden from Woodruff out to Trout Lake. Poorer land than that is now being farmed in the southern part of the state. One will seldom find a better agricultural looking stretch of land than the land between Woodruff and Trout Lake. Fine farms now are to be found in this very region and practically all of it can be farmed. We rather think that the Free Press editor knows nothing about it but has either taken the dope of the State Forester or has had him write the editorial.

The Free Press further says that the expert and independent soil survey of the college of agriculture puts this country out of the question as an agricultural section. Yet the dean of the college in his annual report for 1912, pages 22 and 23, does not mention this region as ever having been surveyed and does set forth in words and by map that the region all around it has been surveyed. This soil survey business by the college of agriculture is all "bosh" too and will not hold water.

The Free Press says that the State Board of Forestry has always been ready to sell land when it could be shown that its holdings interfere with bonafide development. Yes, that is true. But when it comes to showing Forester Griffith that land that he has not his clutches on is agricultural he refers to the soil survey made by the college of agriculture and there you are.

The Free Press refers to the wonderful roads that the forestry service has made. We suggest that instead of talking about a figment of imagination the editor of the Free Press come up and find these "high ways". Forestry roads are "all bosh."

The editor mentions the subject of taxation and suggests the beneficent policy of Forester Griffith. That policy ought to be visited upon the rest of the state and then we would see. We wish it could be visited upon the city of Milwaukee and see what the editor of the Free Press would say. That policy visited upon the southern counties would stir up rebellion. The men of this northern country are not babies to be taken care of by Forester Griffith but are of flesh and blood the same as the rest of the southern part of the state. We ask a square deal.

We would suggest that the Milwaukee papers look into this thing first hand and not take the words of the State Forester for everything. Send a committee up here to look the thing over. Get the thing first hand and then if we are not borne out in our contentions we will submit. But we want to do the showing around and not let it be done by the State Forester.

The New North desires the legislature to pass the bill making a committee of investigation of this matter. We are fair. All we ask is that this thing be looked into. We believe it will be. We believe it is to the interest of legislators to do this. We believe that the legislature will investigate.

When the health of hundreds is at stake and the newspaper man knows the facts, is he "baffling in" to warn the public of the dangers?

Walter J. Millard will speak on "The Socialist Challenge" in this city Wednesday March 5. Hear him as it is good to keep posted on all sides of the question.

Qualified.

HIS PROPHECY REALIZED

Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin won a seven years' fight Monday, when the Senate passed his bill providing for the physical valuation of railroad property. The House had passed a physical valuation measure but as the LaFollette bill contains several amendments, conference action is necessary to clinch legislation on the subject before the end of the present Congress.

This action is probable, however, and the Wisconsin senator seems about to add the biggest feather to his cap that has been plucked since he re-entered the national arena following his occupancy of the badger gubernatorial chair.

LaFollette had scarcely warmed his seat in the Senate when he cut loose with his physical valuation propaganda. He was one of the first of the new school of senators to defy the traditions and break precedents by talking out as a freshman in the game. In those early days the elder statesmen hazed him repeatedly. When he arose to speak the rest of the senators had engagements outside the chamber. It was on one of these occasions, when he was talking to empty Senate benches but fairly wellfilled galleries that the Wisconsin fighter gave utterance to one of his most famous "warnings."

"The seats temporarily vacated," he exclaimed, "will become permanently vacated a little later."

A great many "permanent vacancies" have come to pass since that day, and to that fact is due in large part the passage of the physical valuation measure.—Chicago Record-Herald.

MADERO IS MURDERED

Shot to death while being transferred from the national palace to the Mexican penitentiary in an automobile early Sunday morning was the fate of Francisco I. Madero, deposed president of Mexico, and Jose Pena Suarez, deposed vice president.

The circumstances surrounding the deaths are unknown, except as given in official account which do not conform in all cases. The only witnesses were those actually concerned in the killing.

An official investigation has been ordered to determine the responsibility.

REALLY AMUSING

In the Crusader of the Anti-Tuberculosis Association, Chief Forester Griffith has an article advocating a consumptive sanitarium in the Forest Reserve. The most amusing thing is that the forester shows a nursery of 250,000 young seedlings. Of course no such thing is true. These seedlings are not there. If anywhere, they are in the fertile brain of the Chief Forester. An expert committee went to Trout Lake and returned with the information that any attempt the state forestry department has made to plant a nursery is feeble indeed or in other words that Griffith's Trout Lake Nursery is a joke.

A GOOD BILL

Bill No. 320 A, introduced in the assembly by Honorable Newcomb Spoor of Berlin is stirring up the old political machine that has run the state fair for years. This bill requires the state fair directors to be elected as follows:

The said state board of agriculture shall be elected by the following delegates; one from the college of agriculture of the university of Wisconsin; one from the state horticultural society; one from the state dairymen's association; one from the state buttermakers' association; one from the state poultry association; one from the Wisconsin cheesemakers' association; one from the Wisconsin live stock breeders' association; one from the Wisconsin beekeepers' association; one from the state federation of labor; one from the state experimental association; one from the American society of equity; and nine from the association of fairs, a majority of whom shall be a quorum and no delegate or alternate to have more than one vote.

Mr. Spoor stirred up the fair authorities two years ago. It is recognized that the Wisconsin fair has never been on an equal footing with other state fairs and Mr. Spoor sees some remedy in his bill. Surely nothing can make conditions worse. We approve of Assemblyman Spoor's bill.

POULTRY

HOW TO FUMIGATE HEN HOUSE

Building Should Be Closed Tightly and All Fowls Excluded—Be Careful of Poison Used.

Fumigation is a means of reaching germs and insect life in the air of the room and in the cracks and crevices of the wood work, says the Cultivator. The house or room should be tightly closed and all fowls excluded during fumigation. A simple method is to burn the sulphur candles now sold at stores dealing in poultry supplies. The fumes of brimstone may also be produced by burning in a metallic basin (such as an old iron kettle) a number of rags previously soaked in melted sulphur. Sulphur may be mixed with a little alcohol or kerosene oil and burned, or it may be sprinkled upon live coals placed in a chafin dish. The house or room should be kept closed for several hours and then opened as thoroughly as possible to allow the wind to drive out any remaining trace of poisonous gas. In fumigating by burning substances be careful not to set fire to the building. Remember also that in most cases the substances which are used are poisonous to human life and to fowls. Carelessness in their use or in leaving them about where chick or child can get at them may have dire results.

The Three Heaviest Men.

The three heaviest men of whom any mention is made in history were Miles Darden of Tennessee, Lewis Cornelius of Pennsylvania and Daniel Lambert of England. Darden died in 1857. When in health he was seven feet six inches in height and weighed over 1,000 pounds. There is no record of the date of the death of Cornelius, which occurred in Pike county, Pa., but the account says that he was born in 1794. When in his prime he measured eight feet two inches around the waist, was six feet tall and weighed 945½ pounds. Daniel Lambert was an English freak who died in June, 1800. He was of average height, but weighed 780 pounds.

PATRIOTISM THAT WINS IN THE END

By BELLE K. MANIATES.

"I wonder if I am an expatriot," soliloquized May Hampton, as she looked up from the perusal of a letter from home, remonstrating with her for her prolonged absence.

It was two years now since she had come to this land of sunny skies to study music and Italian for six months. At the end of that time, the people with whom she had come returned home, but May had formed the acquaintance of an English family who had taken up residence in Florence, and they offered to take her in charge. Her parents reluctantly consented to a continuance of her sojourn, and she was now more loath than ever to return. The charm of sunny Italy had worked its spell, and then, too, her voice was developing so marvelously that she began to have visions of grand opera. Memories of home ties were becoming dimmed, and three months ago she had broken her engagement with Tom Rowden. She could never have done this except by letter, for there had been a fascination about Tom, and her resolutions generally weakened in his presence.

The letter twitting her of being expatriated was from her father, who so rarely wrote to her. He had launched into a eulogy over the United States, and her duty to her family.

With a sigh Kate laid down the letter and began to dress for dinner. Her friends, the Gordons, were having some repairs made to their house, and in the meantime they were all staying at a boarding place.

She was roused from her reflections of the stars and stripes by the entrance of Gwendolen Gordon.

"There is a countryman of yours below, May, who has just arrived straight from the states."

"Really?" asked May interestedly. "It's so long since I have seen any one just over."

"You will doubtless meet him at dinner. He is tall, well-formed, good color, bright eyes, well-tubbed. Really he might almost pass for an Englishman."

And May was not yet so "expatriated" as not to experience a tinge of resentment at Gwendolen's inference that his passing for an Englishman was the highest compliment she could pay an American. The description reminded her of Tom, and memories of Tom always brought a vague discomfort. He had merely acknowledged the receipt of the ring she had returned, and had formally regretted her "change of heart."

After the long, friendly letter she had written him explaining her "career" she had certainly looked for more notice than that. She had anticipated opposition, remonstrance or a beseeching letter from him, possibly a visit from him. Maybe he, too, had "changed." And there had been an unaccountable silence on the part of her family, who adored Tom. Her father, whose views on "honor" and the keeping of a promise were so implacable, had never mentioned or hinted at her action—simply indited an oration on her country.

She went down to dinner with a thrill of anticipation at the thought of meeting a "live man" again, for she had secretly disdained the Italians and the men she had met at the Gordons. She was doomed to disappointment. No stranger appeared, though she prolonged the meal as much as possible.

Later in the evening she was sitting on the balcony of her sitting room when she heard the piano below. There were a few random chords, and then there fell grandly on the air a deep baritone voice rendering the "Star Spangled Banner."

"Oh!" she cried with indrawn breath. By the thrill of ecstasy, she knew she was not an alien from her native shores.

She hastened down to the salon which was crowded with American tourists drawn thence by the magic of the home song. At the end of the second verse, May was suffering all the pangs of nostalgia. There was something familiar in the voice, and she worked her way nearer the piano for a glimpse of the musician. She was a little faint when she recognized George Amaden, Tom's particular friend. The sight of him brought vivid recollections of home, home friends and Tom.

She slipped into an adjoining little room to compose and adjust her thoughts before meeting him. In vain she tried to stifle her emotions.

She crossed the room which was unoccupied, and stepped out to the balcony.

A man turned, and in the golden-rayed moonlight she saw Tom, eager and flushed.

"May," he cried.

"Tom!" she said with a little sob. "I am homesick!"

"Your father sent me to—bring you home, May. Will you go back with me?"

At the underlying tenderness in his tone, all her footlight aspirations dropped from her.

"Yes, Tom," she said meekly.

Three months later when Gwendolen Gordon read the account of May's wedding, she commented:

"How very American it was to come down the aisle to martial music!"

America is teaching Europe how to dress its widows. Europe is teaching America how to dress its girls in skimpy clothing, which is most ungrateful.

EUROPEAN TRIP A RELIEF FROM CARE

For years the Browns had planned a European trip, but every year something happened to prevent their getting away. First the children were ill and then Mrs. Brown invited guests for a short time, who stayed several months, preventing the Browns, by the dwindling of the bank account, from going abroad that year. Thus things went on.

Finally Brown declared as an absolute certainty that Europe would see them the following year. All their friends were notified and everything was done to make it impossible for their trip to be prevented.

When all was ready, however, Brown was ordered by his firm to secure a particularly desirable contract at any cost. It meant a lot to the firm and to Brown, but it also meant months of untiring effort—effort that could not be put forth in Europe.

Brown, however, had made his vow and he refused to let his business interfere with his family's plans. The family could go to Europe even if he couldn't. They had relatives abroad, and, besides, he could send them with a party. So he packed them on the train and looked as cheerful as possible when it pulled out.

When he returned home, however, he began to realize how lonesome it was there. It got on his nerves finally and he resolved to board during his bachelorhood. So he moved to a hotel.

Then the thought came to him to rent his house for the months that it would be vacant unless he rented it. There was no earthly use in letting it stand and gather dust, which was the same as throwing away a goodly sum of money each month. Some one would be only too glad of the opportunity to live in a well furnished house in a fashionable suburb, with all the benefits of the Browns' home comforts. Some one, no doubt, was searching eagerly for such an opportunity. So Brown hastened to advertise the treat in store for some one.

The number of replies he received was highly gratifying to him. After picking out the letter written on the best appearing stationery he clutched the bargain over the telephone. Of course, the tenants refused to pay nearly what he thought his house was worth, but on reflection he concluded that they were really carstakers for him who would look after his property generally. He even began to feel under obligations to them for their willingness to take his house and he urged them to make themselves perfectly at home, assuring them that everything in the house was theirs to use as they desired.

When he hung up the receiver he heaved a sigh of relief and content. He needn't even think of the house again until his family were about to return. It was really a great idea of his to have some one take care of the property for him; now he could devote his entire time to the task of getting that important contract.

It was about a week later that over the telephone he listened to a very indignant feminine voice commanding his immediate presence at his home. Fearing no less calamity than a fire, Brown hastened to catch the first train to the familiar suburb.

"What's the matter?" he asked of the woman who opened the door after he had established his identity.

"Why," she replied, without inviting him in, "I wanted to ask you where I can find the pot to knife and the carving set. And when you rented us this place you gave us to understand that it was completely furnished! Well, ever since we moved in we've been unable to find things we ought to have! There are no oyster forks nor individual butter knives! And the table linen is a disgrace—we could never invite guests to dine with us with such linen!"

"And the water froze the first night we were here, so we had to have a plumber, and that was $7. He says your drains are in a terribly insanitary condition, and if we get typhoid we shall certainly charge our doctor bills to you! You've no business advertising a perfect home—it's getting money under false pretenses!"

"We've had to buy lots of little things. Your brooms are dreadful, and some of your kitchen utensils were absolutely worn out. We'll just take the cost out of the rent—for, of course, the things will belong to the house."

Brown had ceased to listen. He was contemplating the gown worn by his tenant—a dainty house dress of Mrs. Brown's. His wife had left much of her wardrobe at home, he knew. In the doorway, to receive the first footprints of the incomers, was the Browns' most valuable rug, treasured as very gold! He wondered what might lie beyond his vision!

He stuttered helplessly, trying to express his dissatisfaction, but the glare of righteous indignation in his tenant's eyes rendered him inarticulate.

"All the rent for the first month is already paid out," said the woman. "When the plumber's bill comes in shall we send it to you, or shall we pay it out of next month's rent?"

"There—there won't be another month!" exploded Brown, turning on his heel to prevent himself from making further unseemly remarks. But as he stamped along the street he recalled that the objectionable occupants of his home had a lease to fortify them against his wrath.—Chicago Daily News.

New Ideas for Handy Boys

By A. NEELY HALL

Author of "Handcraft for Handy Boys," "The Boy Craftsman," etc.

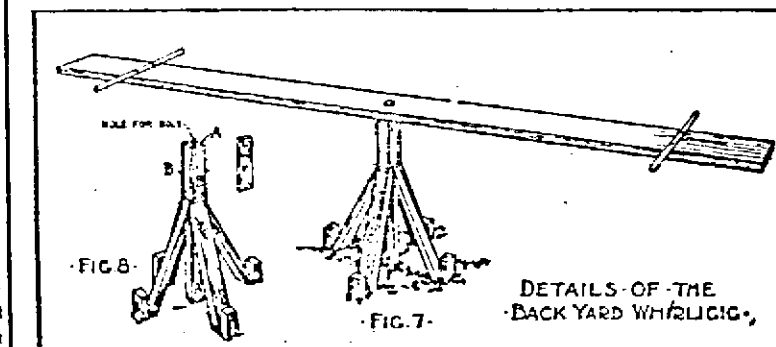

A BACKYARD TEETER AND WHIRLIGIG.

A plank 10 or 12 inches wide and from 14 to 20 feet long suggests many possibilities for backyard fun, and among these is the ever popular teeter, or seesaw, and the whirligig, better known, perhaps, as the "Flying Dutchman." These two pieces of apparatus are quickly made, which is probably one of the reasons for their popularity, but enough time should be given to the work to make the apparatus substantial and to eliminate the possibility of injury to anyone.

The board of a teeter should be secured to its support in such a way that it will not slip when tilting, and thus change the center of balance, and the support should be fastened to the ground so it will not overturn. Fig. 1 shows a teeter built in this way. For the support, shown in Fig. 2, cut the two uprights A 6 feet long out of 2 by 4 inch or 2 by 6 inch stuff, and fasten them to the center of two 2 by 4 inch base plates B (Fig. 3); then brace them with the diagonal braces C. Bore the holes 1 and 2 in uprights A 1 1/2 inches in diameter, hole 1, 6 inches below the top and hole 2, 10 inches below hole 1. These holes are to receive the ends of the axle pieces E (Fig. 2). Cut the axle pieces E 2 1/2 inches long, and cut 4 inches of each end round, as shown in Fig. 4; then bore the holes 3 and 4 through them 3 inches from the ends, 3/8 inch in diameter. These axles must be trimmed a trifle smaller than the holes in uprights A, so they will turn freely. After the axles have been slipped into place, connect the two uprights A of the support with the crosspieces D.

The lower portion of the teeter support, to the top of the diagonal braces, and after spiking their upper ends in place, drive heavy stakes into the ground to keep their lower ends from spreading (D, Fig. 5).

The pivotal bolt for the plank should be of the same size as the hole drilled through it and in the post, so it will drive in snugly, and an iron washer should be placed between its head and the plank, and a couple between the plank and the top of the post A. A broom-handle or curtain-pole handlebar screwed across the plank near each end will complete the whirligig.

It should be set down below the ground level. Dig a hole of the right size to set the base in, and in filling in the earth tamp it down around the supports with the end of a piece of 2 by 4, and pour in water to make it pack down well.

Bore the three pairs of holes 5 and 6, 7 and 8, and 9 and 10 through the teeter plank, as shown in Fig. 5. Holes 5 and 6 should be placed in the center of the length of the plank, 7 and 8 about 6 inches to one side of these, and 9 and 10 about 6 inches from 7 and 8. These holes should be spaced the same distance apart in the width of the plank as are the holes in the axles, but it is a good plan to "stagger" them, that is, set each pair a little to one side or the other of the pair next to it, as shown in Fig. 5. By making the three sets of holes it is possible to adjust the teeter plank so as to balance with persons of unequal weight seated upon it. A pair of 1/4 inch bolts should be used for bolting the plank to the axle. Screw a piece of a broom-handle or curtain pole across the plank near each end for handle-bars.

If the teeter is to be used by just you boys, you will want only the upper axle; but it is well to provide the lower axle, too, so that you can adjust the plank to the lower one in case the little fellows want a ride.

To prevent the axle ends from squeaking, keep them oiled so they will turn without friction.

The support for the whirligig must be braced on all sides (Fig. 7). Fig. 8 shows a detail of it. Get a piece of 2 by 4 at least 2 feet longer than the height at which you wish to have the plank come, which should be about on a line with your waist, for the center upright A. Bore a 5/8 inch or 3/4 inch hole 7 or 8 inches deep in the upper end of A and another of the same size through the center of the plank to be pivoted to it. Then cut the blocks B (Fig. 8) out of 1 inch stuff and nail one to each side of post A on a level with its top, and after chopping the lower end of the post wedge-shaped, drive it about 2 feet into the ground, or until the top is at the desired height. Cut and fit the braces C to the four sides of the post, and after spiking their upper ends in place, drive heavy stakes into the ground to keep their lower ends from spreading (D, Fig. 5).

The pivotal bolt for the plank should be of the same size as the hole drilled through it and in the post, so it will drive in snugly, and an iron washer should be placed between its head and the plank, and a couple between the plank and the top of the post A. A broom-handle or curtain-pole handlebar screwed across the plank near each end will complete the whirligig.

Real Lover of Art Placed Picture He
the Greenback.

"When one loves one's art," wrote O. Henry, "no service can be too hard." He might have added that no sacrifice can be too great. There lives in Kansas City a young man whose business it is to paint portraits of prize cattle. A commercial kind of art? Oh, yes, but one must live. And besides, many of the great artists began that way.

At any rate, he was one of the elect few who hurried to the Findlay Art company's galleries when the exhibitions of thumb box sketches by American artists was announced. And there he saw a sketch that made him stand still and open his eyes wide. It was a sketch of three cattle, standing in the shade of a tree, sunshine breaking through the foliage and lighting up their brown backs in spots.

He went away—and then came back again. Three or four times he came back to look at that picture. Then he decided he must have it.

He inquired the price. It was $65. Whew! He dug down into his trousers pockets. "I've got just a dollar," he said. "Will you take it and hold the picture for me? I'll have to find some way to get the rest."

"You bet we will," said Mr. Findlay. A few minutes later a Kansas City collector who already had purchased three of the little canvases, said to Mr. Findlay:

"I'd like to get that cattle sketch I was looking at a while ago."

"I'm sorry, but this young man has just purchased it," was the reply.

The collector turned to the young artist. "I'll give you a bonus for the sketch," he said.

But the other smiled and shook his head.

The illustration given herewith shows a handy device for watering chickens, writes Richard Lee of Neosho Falls, Kan., in an exchange. Set an airtight keg or barrel on a stand or box with a small pipe A leading from the bottom of the keg to the bottom of the trough, while another pipe B extends from below the upper level of the trough up into the head of the barrel. Fill the keg and cork up tightly, then remove cork from bottom of pipe A and the water will run into the trough until it rises high enough to shut the air off at the lower end of pipe B, when the water will stop running. When the water in the trough is lowered enough to admit air into pipe B the water will again run from A.

The accompanying illustration shows a convenient chicken roost which is proof against rats, minks and weasels. This roost is made of two pieces of plank four feet long, four inches broad and one inch thick; five pieces of plank three feet long, two inches broad, and one thick; four pieces of wire about eight feet long.

As shown in the illustration, the three-foot pieces are nailed crosswise to the four-foot pieces and a wire attached to all four corners. It is then suspended from the roof in the chicken house with the front end of the roost about sixteen inches from the floor while the back should be twenty-seven inches.

USING A FIRELESS BROODER

Box Protected by Wool Carpet and Heated by Small Jug of Warm Water
Is Excellent.

A there are many poultrymen who prefer to raise chicks in a fireless brooder, we give here a plan suggested by W. D. Neale, which has been used successfully for two years, says the Iowa Homestead. He secured a box three feet long, sixteen inches wide and eight inches deep from his grocer for fifteen cents. An opening was made in one side of the box four inches in width and height to admit the chicks. To fit in this box, make a frame of laths two inches less in width and length than the box. The laths were placed about three inches apart and nailed securely to cross pieces at either end. This frame fitted inside the box and rested on nails, two at each end, driven through the box at the desired height. These nails were withdrawn and driven higher in the ends of the box as the chicks grew so that they would have more room beneath the frame. A piece of wool carpet was thrown over the top of the frame and pressed down beneath the lath so that the folds would just touch the downy backs of the chicks. On cold nights an extra piece of carpet was thrown over the box or a small jug of warm water placed inside. The bottom of the box was kept covered with straw.
